

Catella appoints Lee Baz-Sanchez as new Chief People Officer

Catella Group has appointed Lee Baz-Sanchez as its new Chief People Officer. He will join the Executive Management and lead the Group's people agenda across Catella's European platform.

The appointment reflects Catella's continued focus on strengthening Group-wide leadership, talent development and collaboration across its pan-European organisation.

Lee joins Catella with extensive experience from EQT, where he most recently served as Managing Director and Head of HR for EQT's Private Capital platform across Europe and North America. In this role, he has been responsible for the people agenda across multiple investment strategies and specialist functions. He brings more than 15 years of experience from private equity and management consulting.

Prior to joining EQT, Lee spent more than a decade at McKinsey & Company, where he advised organisations on leadership and organisational performance. He later led McKinsey's Organisational Health Index offering, overseeing a global team serving clients across industries.

At Catella, Lee will lead the Group's people and leadership agenda, drawing on his experience in private equity and organisational performance to support the execution of Catella's strategic priorities. As a member of the Executive Management, he will work closely with business areas and country organisations and leadership to strengthen group collaboration across Catella's European operations.

"Catella's continued development depends on our ability to attract, develop and empower talented people across our European platform. Lee brings deep experience from private equity and global management consulting, together with a strong understanding of leadership, culture and organizational group performance. I am very pleased to welcome him to Catella and to our Executive Management as we continue to strengthen Catella and deliver on our strategic priorities," says Rikke Lykke, Group CEO of Catella.

"I am delighted to join Catella at such an exciting stage. Catella's strong entrepreneurial culture, clear strategic direction and unique position in the European market are all real strengths to build on – as is the Leadership's commitment to its people. I very much look forward to working with colleagues across the Group to support the business and contribute to its development," says Lee Baz-Sanchez, incoming Chief People Officer.
