

Catella Residential IM wins Scope Award in “Institutional Real Estate Residential” category

In its annual award ceremony, the European rating agency Scope has honoured the best asset managers and fund concepts. Berlin’s Catella Residential Investment Management (CRIM) took home one of the coveted Scope Investment Awards in the category “Institutional Real Estate Residential”.

The jury highlighted the long and successful track record of CRIM’s residential strategies and praised its innovative investment concepts and the integration of sustainability aspects.

“This award means a lot to the entire team. It reflects more than ten years of working together successfully,” said Michael Fink, Managing Director of CRIM. “Within our European network, we offer our clients a platform that allows them to invest in diversified and European strategies. We also integrate modern housing concepts, such as student or senior living, and sustainability criteria.”

The jury assessed all fund concepts on the basis of six categories: innovation, investment management, operational asset management, track record, transparency and sustainability. The Scope Awards are presented each year by the Scope Group, one of the leading providers of independent ratings, research and risk analysis.
